MESSAGE FROM THE HEAD OF UNIT

Melanie Marais

The youth are indeed the pride of South Africa.

The 21st International AIDS Conference highlighted the importance of giving youth a voice. As the HIV/AIDS Unit, we demonstrate our commitment in giving youth a voice through interventions like the 2015 and 2016 Youth Leadership HIV/AIDS Conferences as well as developing Peer Educators to lead the fight against HIV/AIDS. The HIV/AIDS Unit cannot emphasize enough the importance of your voices in tackling issues of "blessers", sexual and gender-based violence, alcohol and substance abuse, discrimination and many other related issues. Who better to guide us towards helping us find solutions for youth related problems than the youth of today? We encourage students, get involved in extracurricular activities on campus and encourage your peers to get involved. Sport, arts and culture indirectly contribute to the reduction of HIV transmission. At the end we will see a healthy, well-balanced, well-grounded, employable, competent and social responsible graduate contributing on the job side and civil society to the reduction of HIV transmission. CPUT quilt raised its flag at the 21st International AIDS Conference in Durban

A proud moment for CPUT when our quilt was selected to feature in the South African National AIDS Council's 21st International AIDS Conference special addition of "In our Hands: South Africans share their journey of hope."

The last three years the HIV/AIDS Unit rooted its role well and deep in the hearts of many young people. Gone are the days where HIV was considered a "boring and worn out" topic.

Quilts were displayed widely internationally and local dignitaries including the Honourable Deputy President, Cyril Ramaphosa and Minister of Health, Dr. Aaron Motsoaledi did a walkabout.

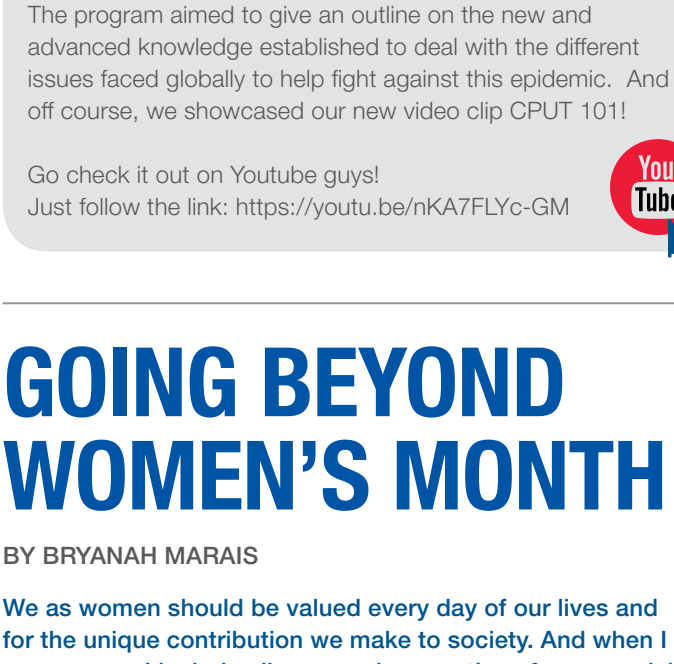

PEER EDUCATORS STEER HEADS & SANAC WITH THE GIRLS CAMPAIGN

Young women and girls between 15 and 24 are up to 8 times more likely to become infected with HIV than their male peers.

Tamara Phai and I represented CPUT at a workshop in Pretoria organized by HEADS together with SANAC, Government departments and civil society to participate at the Young Women and Girls National Campaign workshop on 24 June 2016.

Interesting platform and great minds got together sharing their thoughts around creative ideas in order to fight against the escalating number of the HIV infections amongst the young women.

Eventually we all agreed on a beautiful logo we would like to see representing the campaign with a Zulu slogan "Sibani sesizwe" which in English means "the light of the nation"

THABO'S STORY

Guys, the best investment you can give yourself is to get involved in the CPUT HIV Peer Education Program. You get so much wiser. You will never regret it!

BY NAYTHAN KAYSER

Thabo (pseudonym) is a 19 year old male that hails from a small village in Eastern Cape. Being a brilliant matriculate, the family had great expectations of him.

When arriving at university, Thabo was exposed to friends and activities that he was not used to in the village where he comes from and this was quite a culture shock. During his first year as a chemical engineering student, like many other students, Thabo quickly lost focus and got involved with a group of friends that often attended bashes, hanging out at parties and engaged in alcohol, drugs and unprotected sex. All of these things were new to him and he found himself giving in to peer pressure very quickly as he wanted to impress the new friends and not lose the respect of the popular crowd. "Who would not want to hang out with a group of "popular" or "on flick" guys?" Thabo thought.

The first year went quite quickly and as expected, with the influence of "student life" and not having a good balance. Thabo's exam results did not look so great but he managed to just make it to second year. He did however have some explaining to do about his poor exam results when he got home the end of the year.

During his second year Thabo's class was visited by the HIV/AIDS Unit and he was shocked and intrigued by the thought provoking information that was presented to them. Thabo thought, "Not once did we experience a sense that we were quite a popular crowd." Who would not want to hang out with a group of "popular" or "on flick" guys?" Thabo thought.

After the workshop Thabo decided to feed into his curiosity regarding the information he obtained and visited the HIV/AIDS unit on campus. He firstly did the wise thing to get tested for HIV. That visit changed his outlook on life and his journey at university. "What that friendly and warm group of people had taught me, not once did we experience a sense that we were quite a popular crowd." Who would not want to hang out with a group of "popular" or "on flick" guys?" Thabo thought.

GLOBAL VILLAGE YOUTH PROGRAM SHOWS OFF!

The Global Village was a diverse and vibrant space where youth from all over the world met to share and learn from each other. This was a space that invited young conference participants to see how science translates into community action and intervention.

Highlights for the Global Village was the two students Lulamela Bilebana, CPUT and Amber Brown, False Bay College as well as three of our Peer Educators, Commoran, Unathi and Kamva who attended. Two students completed an evaluation form and during a lucky draw, they won an all-expenses paid trip to the Global Village.

Interesting and eye catching couture made with condoms were displayed. Designed by Adriana Bertini from Brazil a condom couture modelling show was presented to the attention. The condomise stand had contemporary dances who entertained the crowd and danced with some delegates as well.

"The Global Village was epic! Many youth expressed their views about the current issues in order to fight against the orientation, (discrimination) in discussion groups, learning from each other and show innovative strategies that can be used to attract the attention of youth around the world."

ACCESS EQUITY RIGHTS NOW!

It is our absolute pleasure to express our unending gratitude to CPUT for giving us an opportunity to attend this momentous and historic conference.

A powerful theme Access Equity Rights Now set the mood for the 21st International AIDS Conference from the start.

Thank you to our peers who nominated us, the HIV/AIDS Unit coordinator and staff who ensured that we were safe and well taken care of at all times throughout the trip and most importantly to the AIDS 2016 Conference Coordinating Committee for their work in developing a successful and memorable program.

The program aimed to give an outline on the new and advanced knowledge established to deal with the different issues faced globally to help fight against this epidemic. And off course, we showcased our new video clip CPUT 1011.

Go check it out on YouTube guys!

GOING BEYOND WOMEN'S MONTH

BY BRYANAH MARAIS

As we women should be valued every day of our lives and for the unique contribution we make to society. And when we say women, I include all women, irrespective of race, social preferences and socio economic background.

August month is not enough to show appreciation to women. Every year the month of August comes along and we are bombarded with pink-themed girl power advertisements, but do we really acknowledge the true meaning behind women's day? Sure, we all know about the march to the union buildings in 1956, but the day is of much more importance signifying the strength of women. Many women are still victims of abuse, sexism, misogyny, domestic violence and rape, after more than 50 years of celebrating this day. The very same perpetrators of sexual and gender-based violence are the same people who have or had motherly, maybe sisterly daughters. They were born from a woman; they were cared for by a woman. It is time women stand up to speak out against social ills in our communities and support women empowerment. If it would be in our building in the 1950s, then we can surely do it today. Women can make a unique contribution to society given the opportunity and the will.

Making wise choices

WOMEN'S MONTH EVENT

Family planning services, breast examination, free neck and hand massage, health & fitness. Thank you CPUT! Somaticology, Marie Stopes Reproductive Health, Virgin Active, Herbalife, Peak Drive, Wellness Care Department of Health, Student Counselling, Campus Clinic.

Radiographer, Singer, Songwriter and producer Chrysal for entertaining us and sharing the importance of making the right decisions.

Don't make the old men. Let's define a blessing Ladies, it's ANY man irrespective of his age, who wants to give you goods in exchange for sexual favours. In other words male students can be blessers too! Don't be fooled.

1. What company do you keep - writing company conjures you

2. Where do you get your advice from - reminded students to use the support systems at the university

3. Don't make hasty decisions that you will regret. Think about it first or sometimes we need a decision before we make a decision.

Thank you Chrysal Swanson!

TACKLING THE "BLESSER" PHENOMENON BY STORM

Disrupt our remarkable success in saving lives through the provision of free treatment for people living with HIV and AIDS, it is estimated that nearly 2,000 girls and young women between the ages of 15 and 24 get infected by HIV in this country each week," said Ramaphosa.

The campaign "Women and Girls Matter", seeks to reduce the interlinked problems of HIV, school dropout, teenage pregnancy and gender-based violence and to maximize health, education and economic opportunities for young women and adolescent girls. The three-year campaign will increase access to reliable and reproductive health information at the primary, secondary, adolescent- and youth-friendly clinics, the Integrated School Health Programme, community especially peer outreach and support. Funded through the United States President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief DREAMS initiative, the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria, the German development agency GIZ and the national government, this campaign promises to make it work!

"Phantsi ngo blesser, phantsi! Phantsi ngo sugar daddy, phantsi!"

FIRST THING FIRST CAMPAIGN KICKED OFF IN WOMEN'S MONTH!

Lecturer take hands with her students and got tested

Always remember First Thing First KNOW YOUR STATUS

BY BONGIWE MBEKI (PR INTERN)

First Thing First HCT team test across all CPUT campuses and residences testing students and staff.

Students came in their numbers voluntarily testing to know the most important thing in their lives, and that is to get to know their HIV status and the importance of wise and healthy choices.

Ms. Belinda Berman, OMT lecturer accompanied almost all her students to get tested for HIV at Cape Town Campus and also she got tested too! High five Ms Berman, "KNOW YOUR STATUS" that is a slogan that HIV/AIDS Unit applaud and pride itself for. According to Lusanda Mangleli HIV Counsellor HCT team managed to test close to 2000 students and staff for this semester.

HIV/AIDS Unit would like to thank TB/HIV Care Association for their continued partnership to help us bring healthcare services to staff and students.

COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT A KEY FOCUS AREA

High School Community Outreach

BY NAYTHAN KAYSER

Behavioral change among adolescents is key to preventing issues of teenage pregnancy, gangsterism, alcohol & substance abuse as well as sexual & gender-based violence.

It is therefore critical to constantly engage with youth and more specifically school going youth on sexual risk taking behaviors they engage in.

To assist schools, we have formed partnership with three schools in the nearby communities namely: Excalibur High School, Truvelo High School and Randenkou High School. We hope to increase these numbers every year. We are planning to do many other visits to our partner schools including whole school assemblies.

Female Peer Educators drive discussions in Campus Residences

BY SANDISIWE TONGO - PEER EDUCATOR

The group discussion took part at Catville residence in Observatory in early September.

We discussed a lot of social issues, general issues basically all issues that affects us young women. Social issues like alcohol abuse, sexualised poverty, new flavored condoms, HIV and AIDS. We also did condom demonstration and the audience participated on it fully. They enjoyed so much that it was suggested that I bring, dillos on our next discussion group. The audience was vibrant, enthusiastic and open about things they went through in life.

PEER EDUCATORS AWARD DINNER

BY BONGIWE MBEKI

The HIV/AIDS Unit hosted Peer Educators Award Dinner Ceremony on Friday 02nd December 2016, to the event was hosted in Grand Beach Hotel Library.

The Peer Educator Officer, Naythan Kayser shared that the aim of the ceremony was to award deserving students who worked very hard throughout the year 2016.

LET'S TALK 16 DAYS OF ACTIVISM

LUCHULUMANCO NANTO

16 days of activism for no violence against women and children abuse is a worldwide campaign to oppose violence against women and children.

The campaign seeks to raise awareness of the negative impact that violence and abuse have on women and children and to rid society of abuse perpetration. The campaign is held annually from 15th November to 1st December. The sad reality of the campaign is that the success of it rests on our daily individual and collective actions to safeguard our society against this cycle of abuse.

The theme for 2016 is "Count me In: Together moving a non-violent South Africa forward", the campaign will be officially launched by President Jacob Zuma in Raigser Park, Ekurhuleni, on 25 November.

Although the campaign runs only for 16 days each year, its objectives are reinforced by a year-long programme and a national plan to combat abuse.

Despite the 16 days of activism against the abuse of women and children and world-renowned Constitution and a legislative overhaul that safeguards women's and children's rights, women and children abuse remains at an incline in South Africa. The abuse of women and children is systematic and is endorsed by various cycles such as culture and religion. In a diverse country like South Africa, where there is a variety of cultures and religious beliefs practiced on a daily basis, with some of them objectively abusive towards women. Women from all kinds of backgrounds and all ages in modern South Africa, face abuse in all spheres of life. It can happen at work, on the street, or at home.

All South Africans are urged to support the campaign by wearing a white ribbon - a symbol of peace - during the 16-day period, to symbolize their commitment to never commit or condone violence against women or children.

Students or staff members experiencing abuse of any kind need to speak out and seek assistance. Who better to help is experiencing any kind of abuse be it at home, at your residence or on campus, you can visit the Student Counselling Office, HIV/AIDS Unit Office and/or the Clinic of which all of them are situated at the CPUT Cape Town Campus, Admin Building, Second Floor.
